

Abstract

Disclosed are test methods for testing message paths in communication networks. Also disclosed are redundant network arrangements for rerouting information when faults are detected.